Those changes are listed later in this issue and, lik budget, require three readings and a special recue by the Supreme Advocate to complete. Please take a moment to re proposed changes and bring any questions you may have to the 9/12 Business Meeting. Youth receives Knights' scholarship award

KERNERSVILLE — Knights of Columbus Council 8509 at Holy Cross Church in Kernersville recently presented a scholarship to a young member of the parish.

The Staddon-Cain Scholarship Award was presented to Elizabeth Ann Lawrence, a junior at Bishop McGuinness Catholic High School, during a fish fry fundraising dinner March 3. Grand Knight Lance Cancro presented this year's $500 award.

The scholarship fund is to perpetuate the education of young individuals in the Catholic faith. Candidates are considered based on their academic achievements as well as community- and church-related accomplishments.

Elizabeth's activities include volunteering with Habitat for Humanity, Special Olympics and the Columbettes, the Knights' sister organization. She is also an active member of Holy Cross Church's youth group.

The Staddon-Cain scholarship is named after John Staddon and Frank Cain, two men who married Catholic wives and supported the Catholic Church and its teachings.

The annual award was first presented by the Knights in 1987.

KERNER KNIGHT - MARCH 2006

OUR FOUNDER

The Ideal Parish Priest

A new biography captures Father McGivney's spiritual vision

The new biography of Father McGivney, Parish Priest: Father Michael McGivney and American Catholicism (William Morrow, $24.95US/$33.95 CAN), has the potential to make him known beyond the boundaries of Catholicism and the brotherhood of the Knights.

REV. GABRIEL B. O'DONNELL, OP

The authors, Douglas Brinkley and Julie M. Fenster, have done a marvelous job of bringing their subject's world in light and bringing him to life. From the beginning of their project they consulted the Knights of Columbus Archives and the research done for Father McGivney's canonization process to ensure the authenticity of their portrayal.

Brinkley and Fenster supply a fascinating setting for the life of this ordinary parish priest who lived his life in a most extraordinary way. The ship preserved historical record of Father McGivney's life has been enriched by telling his story through the lens of the many relationships in his life. His family, his friends and, most of all, those who knew him as a priest and called him "Father," form the backdrop for their account of a man with the unusual ability to touch the hearts of those around him. Quiet and shy by nature, Father McGivney was nonetheless a charismatic figure in 19th century Connecticut.

Brinkley and Fenster bring to life relationships that influenced Father McGivney and shaped his vision of the priesthood and of family life. Facts such as his father's resistance to young Michael's vocation to the priesthood, Michael's academic and athletic success, and his desire to become a Jesuit help to form a more complete picture of the Servant of God as a young man and a seminarian.

The authors' focus on Father McGivney's priestly identity, his priestly heart and his manner of acting toward others jumps out at the reader. Part history, part biography and part religious anthropology, the book successfully captures the vision of Father McGivney.

This new volume makes clear the important place Father McGivney holds in the history of the Catholic Church in North America. As founder of what has become the largest Catholic fraternal benevolent organization of our time, Father McGivney must be recognized for his originality, his organizational genius and spiritual vision.

What this new biography cannot provide is what many of us most long for: an account of the interior life of Michael McGivney as a young seminarian or as a priest. Since none of Father McGivney's personal papers, such as diaries or homilies he preached, have been preserved, we have no record of his intimate relationship with God or his family and friends. Gratefully, Brinkley and Fenster have been able to confirm all the positive accounts of his goodness, holiness and virtue.

This is not a book about the Knights of Columbus. It is a true biography that traces how the life of one man touches and changes the lives of others. It is about Father McGivney, but it also tells how the life of every man or woman affects the lives of those around them. It is a book that honors the dignity of human life, especially the lives of the poor and the marginalized, and celebrates the beauty and sacredness of Christian family life. This is less the outlook of the authors and more their faithful rendering of the vision and convictions of their subject, Father Michael McGivney.

By end of Parish Priest, it is clear to the reader that Father McGivney is the ideal of every parish priest. He is the perfect expression of what it means to be a priest of the people and to lay down one's life for their salvation and temporal good. Father McGivney is an important link to yesterday. His vision is a light into tomorrow.

Solid devotion to Father McGivney can only be helped by this new account of his life and work. Our prayers for the successful progress of his cause must continue. Parish Priest is already a commercial success; our hope now is for a great spiritual impact. ■

Dominican Father Gabriel B. O'Donnell is postulator for the cause of sainthood of the Servant of God Father Michael J. McGivney.

Dear Members of Council No. 8509:

On behalf of the entire Kernersville Police Department and Jeff Weathers and his family, I want to thank the membership for your generous donation totaling $300. It has meant so much to the Weathers family to know that they are receiving these goodwill gestures and prayers throughout the community. Jeff has expressed to me how overwhelming this outpouring from the organizations and citizens of Kernersville has been and how instrumental it has been toward his recovery thus far.

The Kernersville Police Department not only considers itself a law enforcement agency, but an important partner with the citizens, organizations and churches in the Triad. It is the generosity of organizations, like yours, that embody the hometown spirit that makes Kernersville such a wonderful community in which to live.

Once again, on behalf of the entire Kernersville Police Department, I thank you for your generosity, care and concern.

Sincerely,

Neal
